One of the lightest, sharpest cavalry blades ever seen. It's sort of like a much better gleddyf but from the Mettinese.

The Esboda features a long relatively thin blade with a fuller that runs to three inches from the tip, and features an intricately woven metal basket as a handguard that connects where the crossguard would be to the pommel.

It is said, that the witchers of the School of the Waheela, used a type of sword very similar to the Esboda.
